

Giving a Voice to the Voiceless

With more than a third of its population below the age of 18, India has the largest child population in the world. This backgrounder explores the level of health, nutrition, education and social security of children and government policy and action on child rights. India has made some significant commitments towards ensuring the basic rights of children. There has been progress in overall indicators: infant mortality rates are down, child survival is up, literacy rates have improved and school dropout rates have fallen. But, the issue of child rights in India is still caught between legal and policy commitments to children, on the one hand, and the fallout of the process of globalisation, on the other.

Save the Children – Bal Raksha Bharat, under the International NGO Partnership Programme with the Department for International Development (DFID) UK, has launched a project entitled, 'Stronger Voice to Excluded Children in Government and NGO Policies and Programmes (IPAP)' in three backward districts of Rajasthan, viz., Alwar, Chittorgarh and Bharatpur, in partnership with Alwar Mewat Institute of Education and Development (AMIED); CUTS Centre for Human Development (CUTS CHD), Chittorgarh; Prayati Bharatpur; and Society for All Round Development (SARD), New Delhi.

The goal of the project is 'By 2012, socially excluded children (Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribes) in Rajasthan have improved status with their voices being heard and recognised institutionally by formal and informal structures'. The overall objective of the project is 'Socially excluded children (Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribes) in 28 villages of Chittorgarh district in Rajasthan benefit from the development programmes, policies and schemes of the government, donors and NGOs by the end of 2012'.

The duration of the project is four-and-a-half years and will be implemented by CUTS CHD in 28 villages of six gram panchayats of Chittorgarh Block:

He also urged for collective efforts to protect the rights of socially excluded children.

The programme was formally launched by lighting of the lamp by chief guests. In their speech, the guests congratulated CUTS for making concerted efforts towards improving the condition of deprived children in the district and assured full cooperation in implementing the project. A Major Initiative to Promote Girl Child Education

A Girl Child Education Promotion Campaign was conducted under the Save the Children – Bal Raksha Bharat-supported project 'Stronger Voice to excluded children in Government and NGO Policies and Programmes'. The campaign was launched to educate and inform community members on the importance of girl child education, increasing girl child enrolment, school attendance and bring dropout girls back to school in 28 villages of six gram panchayats of Chittorgarh block.

A meeting was held in the school to discuss the importance of educating girl child, which was addressed by Head Master and CUTS staff. In the meeting, the goals and objectives of the project were also discussed. After this, the children took up a rally in the village with banners and colourful placards in their hands and raising slogans. These slogans were educative and short like 'Beti padhne jaayegi, parivaar sukhi banaegi' (if a girl goes to study, the family will become happy) which helped in spreading the message in a short time. The rally passed through the route that covered maximum number of households in each of the villages. The use of dhol to gather people made it more attractive and catchy.

During the rally, efforts were made to identify children who were not going to school or were irregular or have dropped out. The rally was launched on August 11, 2009 from the village Bad ka Amrana and it continued for about one month and concluded on September 11, 2009 in the villages Sawa and Dhani. The staff then called a meeting of the parents of the children who are not in school and would talk to them about educating their children. As a result of this campaign, 69 students joined the schools (40 girls) which include both the dropout and irregular children.
